Refugee Survey Quarterly

The Refugee Survey Quarterly is published four times a year and serves as an authoritative source on current refugee and international protection issues. Each issue contains a selection of articles and documents on a specific theme, as well as book reviews on refugee-related literature. With this distinctive thematic approach, the journal crosses in each issue the entire range of refugee research on a particular key challenge to forced migration.

The journal seeks to act as a link between scholars and practitioners by highlighting the evolving nature of refugee protection as reflected in the practice of UNHCR and other major actors in the field. Interdisciplinary in nature, the Refugee Survey Quarterly provides an invaluable resource and reference tool for professionals, practitioners, researchers, students and policy-makers in the field.
